Together, we can stand up for women and babies during the global health crisis.

Earlier this week I shared an update regarding the global health emergency and our efforts to find a solution that supports your ongoing involvement in our birthing kit program.

I am thrilled to let you know that as of Monday 30 March, our Assembly Day events have been adapted to enable individuals to pack birthing kits at home.

This exciting innovation means you can continue to help women and babies at a time when they need it most.

If you have recently postponed an Assembly Day event, or you would like to register a new event, please reach out to our team to find out how you can get involved with "Kits at Home".

Our team is currently developing a range of resources to support you, including a new digital community to keep you inspired and connected with other volunteers. Stay tuned for further details soon.

In such uncertain times, "Kits at Home" will offer certainty to mothers around the world by providing access to critical health resources and importantly, hope, during this global emergency.

Thank you for your continued support of BKFA at this time. Please visit our website and social channels for further updates and news.

Warm regards and stay safe,
